WHENCE COME ARTISTS. - In an article on New York artists, the Independent furnishes some interesting facts.
The first President of the National Academy of Design, S. F. B. Morse, came from Massachusetts; Inman, the second president came from Utica; Durand, the third president came from New Jersey; and Huntington, the amights who now presides at the head of Acw Jersey; and Huntington, the aniisable, who now presides at the head of that great institution, is a native of Connecticut. Massa-chusetts has sent us that bon enfant, E. W. Perry, Bradford, Whittridge, Col-man, John Rogers, New Hampshire favored us with Shattuck; and Maine bestowed Eastman Johnson upon us. Pennsylvania has contributed to our artistic wealth George C. Lambdin, Heade, Hazeltine and Hicks

William Page, the greatest of portrait the centre of the State; Carpenter is from the same region, and Launt Thompson comes from the State capital; Gifford is from Hudson. Ohio has given us W. H. Beard, for whom we have which we will sell low for each. We have the FAMILY GROCERTES: eause to be grateful; as for Quincy Adams Ward, the great sculptor.— France, so fertile in great artists, nour-The sun shines only in Paris for Frenchmen. American scenery for us; and Nehig, another Frenchman, has been content spring to stay with us, though he left France to make sketches in Cuba. Italy has given us Augero and Fagnami-the one Piedmont and the other from Naples. We are indebted to Ireland for Hennessy, to England for Guy, and to Scotland for the two Harts William and James.
